To-Day's Schedule.

GRAND.-Vaudeville, 2:15 and 8:15 p. m. EMPIRE.-Burlesque, 2 and 8 p. m.

Opening of Mrs. Fiske's Engagement. One of the most notable events of this or any other theatrical season in Indianapolis will be the engagement at the Park Theater of the distinguished American actress, Mrs. Fiske, for three performances in Paul Heyse's great drama of the crucifixion, "Mary of Magdala." The engagement will open this evening and there will be two representations of the play to-morrow-an afternoon and an evening performance. It was said in New York during the long run of "Mary of Magdala" at the Manhattan Theater that there never had been a production before on a metropolitan stage in which such pains were taken as to historical verities. Experts in every field have drama, which scenically, in costumes, accessories and every detail of its preparation sets a standard that it will be difficult hereafter to eclipse. Every scene in this play has been constructed and furnished with the most laborious attention to exactitude in all matters, and, while the Heyse drama is legtimate and poetic to a degree, it affords opportunity for original surprises in the way of pictures and effects. For instance, the last act gives scope for a dis-play most remarkable, impressive and thrilling. It pictures a wilderness in a weirdly romantic way-a place of solitude so realtistic that it is doubtful if the history of the drama can show its parallel. Here occurs a storm the effects of which may be described as wonderful, and to the perfecting of which the ingenuity of many experts in optics and electricity have been This scene alone makes "Mary of Magdala" more than notable among modern plays that have illustrated the advance

The play comes to Indianapolis fresh from its New York run, having been seen in but three other cities on its way. The title role gives Mrs. Fiske a character to portray that is radically different from anything she has ever before attempted, yet one to which she is said to be admirably suited. She is the central figure of a poetic drama written in what may be termed the classic and dealing with a period and character that are fraught with interest. As her former productions, "Mary of Magdala" will show Mrs. Fiske's genius not only as an actress, but also as a producer, for all the details of the stage management have been conducted by her. She has given months of study to the play, and nearly two years have been spent in preparing the English adaptation and in arranging drama has received. Beautiful as all of the other recent productions have been, they cannot nor, it is declared, can any contemporary stage offering equal the richness and splendor of the settings in "Mary of Magdala." Mrs. Fiske is surrounded by a splendid company, which includes such players as Tyrone Power, one of the finest actors on the American stage, who appears in the strong role of Judas, and Henry Woodruff, the handsome young actor, who was last seen here with Nat C. Goodwin's company and who will appear in the Heyse drama as Flavius, the nephew of Pontius throughout the week, and it is thought that the theater will be packed at every performance. There are still good seats to be obtained, however, for the two performances to-morrow, as the Park Theater has a seating capacity that is remarkable. A notable feature of the Park's auditorium is that a complete view of the stage can be had from any seat in the house has made arrangements to handle all carriages after the performances so as to avoid

The management of the Park Theater all confusion, and if the weather should be disagreeable a canopy will be erected from the street to the theater lobby. It is specially requested that the audience be seated by 8 o'clock, as the play will begin promptly at that time and the ushers will not allow late comers to go to their seats until the end of the first act.

Black Patti and Her Troubadours.

There is always one feature about a colcred show that white performers would do well to imitate-the performance is never allowed to become mechanical. It has been noticeable in every colored troupe that has played in Indianapolis recently that the people of the company seemed to get as much enjoyment out of their entertainment as their audiences did. Black Patti and her troubadours are no exception to this rule. The dark-skinned prima donna and rule. The dark-skinned prima donna and ton, D. C., arrived yesterday and are at her aggregation of singers, dancers and Hotel English for a few days. They will funmakers played a brief engagement at the Park yesterday, giving a matinee and | Halford, and will proceed to California for evening performance to overflowing audiences, and demonstrated once again that it takes the colore 'ks of the theatrical world to have a good time on the stage. To witness the entertainment by this company one would have imagined that the troupe was just starting out for the season, in stead of fast coming to the close of its present long tour. Every member of the combination, from Black Patti herself down to the fellow who played the part of the monkey, seemed to be getting a world of pleasure out of the show, and the large audiences soon caught the spirit of the thing, and gave vent to hearty demonstration of approval time and again. The entertainment given was very much like other colored musical attractions, being made up of hilarious coon songs, a few pretentious vocal efforts and plenty of buck and wins dances of the kind that stirs up wild enthusiasm among those in the audience-and they are usually to be found in the gallery-who know "hard steps when they see 'em." The Black Patti is still holding fast to the "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore." For some inexplicable reason the prima donna of a colored show is always expected to sing this number; if she didn't the audience would probably come to the conclusion that it had been bunkoed in some way or other. The Black Patti-or to come down to prosaic everyday names, Mrs. Jones-sang her share of the famous duet in good style, and the tenor part was well rendered by Miss Bess McCrea, Miss Frances Adams, J. E. Worles, who possesses a good clear voice. Mrs. Jones also sang a selection from "Martha," and then, by way of displaying her versatility, gave an extract from "The Belle of New York." All of the chorus numbers were delivered in a pleasing manner, the chorus girls all being well drilled and most of them possessing good voices. The comedy portion of the | pleasant social events of the week was the | complied and handed over $11.

performance was in the hands of John Green, J. E. Greene, Will Cook and Leslie Triplett, and they caused a lot of laughter with their comic songs and funny antics. John Greene made the hit of the show by appearing to be very much at home in indianapolis. His allusions to various wellknown shining lights of "the avenue" (Indiana avenue) kept the colored people in the audience at both the matinee and evening performance holding their sides with of age.

Theatrical Notes.

Next week the Grand will have what appears to be another strong vaudeville bill. Janet Stetson and Evie Melville, who are considered two of the brightest talkers. jesters and imitators on the vaudeville stage, will be the headliners. Other contributors well known to local audiences will be Johnnie Carroll, Beatrice Moreland and Hal Stevens, and there will be a number of newcomers on the programme whose performances are said to be novel and in-teresting. The current bill has been attracting a good deal of attention, and big audiences are the rule at every perform-

Harrison Grey Fiske, the husband and manager of Mrs. Fiske, has just secured the rights of a Spanish play which he will produce at the Manhattan Theater next fall, and which promises to be one of the most notable of dramatic novelties. The drama, in its English form, has not as yet been named, but it will probably be called "Marta of the Lowlands." It has been played with great success in Madrid, as well as in Paris and in South America.

x x x Liebler & Co. announce that Kyrle Bellew, the English actor now starring in "A Gentleman of France," and who will be seen as Romeo in the all-star cast of "Romeo and Juliet," soon to be produced, will next season be seen as Raffles, the gentlemanly burglar, in a dramatization of E. W. Hornung's successful novel, "The Amateur Cracksman."

Bernard Shaw's brilliant play, "The Devil's Disciple," has just been produced in Vienna with much success. "Arms and the Man," another one of Shaw's plays, has been prohibited in Vienna, owing, it is said, to reasons connected with the Macedonian crisis which would render objectionable a presentation of a somewhat burlesqued phase of the Bulgarian army.

In Boston tickets to shows seem to be more value than hard cash. Thieves broke into Herrick's theatrical ticket office in Boston the night before last and stole $1,600 worth of tickets, but overlooked $1,000 in Yesterday morning Mr. Blythe lectured before the junior class in hygiene of the Indiana Medical College. He told the students how the weather men make their prognostications, and gave them a little general information about the data on which forecasts are based. "The suggestion that Mr. Shideler has gone to Evansville to confer with First district Republicans in regard to his candidacy for Governor is without foundation," said T. H. O'Neal, of Marion, at the Denison last evening. "Mr. Shideler is in Evansville on a private business mission. He and his partner, R. E. Breed, have received very gratifying offers to establish a glass factory there and he has gone down to discuss the proposition." Mr. O'Neal is one of Mr. Shideler's first lieutenants in his campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and is in a position to speak with authority. It has been intimated that Shideler went to Evansville to fix up a deal with the Hemenway forces whereby he would receive in this city. Mr. Hoop is a merchant re- the support of the First district and turn would lend his strength to Hemenway when the latter seeks an office outside his

"Mr. Shideler does not know whether Hemenway will be a candidate for Governor," continued O'Neal, "and it is not likely that he would be going down there on any such political mission unless he knew just where the First district representative stands. There have been many conflicting reports concerning Hemenway's position on the governorship question, but his decision will in no way affect Mr. Shideler's candidacy. He is a candidate, no matter who enters the race, and his friends are doing quiet but effective work for him. Every county in the Eleventh district is lined up for him and that is a substantial foundation for his campaign."

> Mr. O'Neal is a comparatively new worker in the Republican ranks in Grant county, but he is considered a valuable man he had charge of the Republican organization in the soldiers' home there, where there are over two thousand votes, and he did very effective work. Elam Neal, of Jonesboro, Republican district committee-man, will have charge of Shideler's campaign for Governor, and O'Neal will be one of his assistants. Cyrus G. Robbins, city clerk of Marion, was also in the city yesterday, and he, too, had a good word to say for Shideler. Robbins's mission, however, was one of business, and he did not have time to talk politics. The city of Marion has just ordered a bond issue of $60,000 to cover municipal mprovements, and he was down here to see about getting the bonds printed. The bonds will be sold within a few weeks and it is expected that the sale will attract bidders from all over the country. Marion's credit is gilt edge and her bonds have always sold at a good premium.

He Was a Consistent "Bill Killer" in the Lower House.

L. R. Stookey, of Warsaw, representative from Kosciusko county, took the position early in the session that the best service a member of the Legislature could render the people would be to oppose consistently all bills except the general appropriation measure, and his record was consistent with his expressed views. He stood with Warren Sayre, of Wabash, as one of the effective bill killers of the House, and while he did not oppose every measure he voted no three times to every once that he voted

However, I think the bill should have bea law, because I believe that under the existing statutes it is possible to drain any lake within the State. J. A. M. Adair, of Portland, "the gentleman from Jay," and James W. Fortune, of prevent more serious disturbances. Jeffersonville, two of the most pror Democratic members of the recent Legislature, were in the city last night. Adair was the caucus chairman of the minority in the House, while Fortune was the minority floor leader in the Senate, and their appearance here at the same time led to the inference that there was "something doing" in Democratic circles. They said last evening at the Grand, however, that there was no significance to be attached to their presence in Indianapolis at this time. Adair is here on a business mission, while Fortune will look after some legal matters in the Supreme Court to-day. Senator Fortune has been mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor two years hence, no less a personage than T. Taggart having suggested that he might make the race. The senator laughed last evening when the matter was put to him, and, while he intimated that he was not seeking preferment in that line, he did not make a very vigorous de-

Henry W. Marshall Has No Thought of a Congressional Race. Henry W. Marshall, of Lafayette, who was at the Columbia Club last evening, laughed heartily at the report that he has congressional aspirations and was considering the advisability of entering the lists against Judge Crumpacker for the nomination for representative from the Tenth district. "I am sorry that I haven't the imagination with which some people are gifted,' he said, "for if I had I might not only dream that I was thinking of making the race, but that I had made it and secured the nomination and election. It's a happy faculty to be able to imagine such pleasant things, but I haven't it. I'm not a candidate for anything, and I'm not thinking of becoming a candidate. I've had enough politics to last me for quite awhile." And as he said this Mr. Marshall smiled

Street Paving in Marion.

"We have tried brick and we have tried asphalt," said City Clerk Robbins, of Marion, at the Denison last evening in speaking of street paving, "and I think that in the future Marion will stick to brick, especially on streets that are used to any great extent. The Marion Trust Company Cannot Run Away An individual executor or trustee may have an excellent reputation and financial standing and yet gradually be led into some speculation with estate funds whereby they are lost. Watch the daily papers; note how often such cases are repeated and remember that only a small portion of them get into the papers, the greater number being compromised or abandoned as hopeless. This is only one of the many serious dangers arising from the placing of trust estates in the hands of individuals. Consultation relative to execution of Councilman Shea says he will revive the ordinance introduced two years ago requiring flagmen or safety gates and alarm towers at all street crossings. The Council has the undoubted right to require these improvements and it is believed they will go a long way toward minimizing accidents. Expressions from railroad officials are not antagonistic to the scheme of safety gates and alarm bells, although they admit that ciples are of centuries' duration and they and alarm bells, although they admit that this will tend to delay track elevation. Councilman Negley is preparing an or-dinance requiring safety gates and a watch them. tower at Thirteenth street and the Lake Erie tracks. #### Irish Characteristics. To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal:

Your editorial in yesterday's Journal on the character of the the Irish people is worthy of commendation. Tributes of praise, in years gone by, were very rare. Leading journals, except at election times, were averse to giving the Irish any notice, excepting a very condescending one. They more frequently held them up to public ridicule. To caricature the Irish was common sport for the daily press. Every blunder that was witnessed was in some way realized as a joke on the Irish man or woman. The coarsest vulgarisms were stuffed into an illfitting garb of stupid dialect with Pat or Biddy's name to give them an Irish trade-mark. As the Irish are proverbially witty and humorous, the offenders did not discriminate between wit stood, be made by James McCrea, president of the Union Railway Company and were intended to degrade the Irish and were often transplanted from England. It pany. Mr. McCrea expects to be here in about two weeks.

Just what form the proposition of the roads will take is not anticipated. Mr. Maof the Irish may know that these caricatures are offensive. The Irish, as other races, have their giants and their pigmie but they want their giants placed in evidence as well as their dwarfs that people may form a just opinion of the race. As you remarked, the Irishman is a world citizen. The religion he accepted from St. Patrick is so sacred to him and so highly valued that he is a missionary, bu ohurches and proclaiming his fa saint all over the civilized world. He can-New York yesterday, said his visit had not accept anything that is opposed to his nothing to do with track elevation matters. Fire in a Frame House. The two-story frame apartment house at 425 and 427 East Ohio street was damaged by fire yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock to the extent of $250. The fire was caused by a defective flue. There were a number of occupants in the house when the fire was discovered. A number of women were on the second floor, and a panic almost en-

DOCTOR LEARNED

The Power of Pure Food. Sometimes a physician who has exhausted medical skill in his own case finds that he has to look to pure food to cure him by its simple and homely yet natural and scientific principles.

A well-known physician and surgeon of Crowley, La., has spent a great many years in this profession. "The services of my lifetime," he says, "have been to try to better mankind; to help them preserve health when in possession of it and to help them to regain it when lost. So it is with pleasure I recall my first introduction to Grape-Nuts. I had never investigated the food until I came to use it in my own case. I had suffered all that a man can suffer fro dyspepsia, had tried to heal myself and had had the services of many other promit Nuts as a drowning man clutches at a straw, and to my great astonishment and gratification I found that I had discovered something besides a broken reed to lean mmediately and it has now entirely cure me to such an extent that I have return to my old habit of eating everything that I desire and can do so without distress. "And I have not only found a good friend in sickness, but a most delicious dish as well. It is the most nutritious article of diet I have ever found, and I notice its splendid effects more particularly at night time, for a saucer of Grape-Nuts and milk is always followed by a most refreshing sleep and perfect awakening. My only regret is that I was so slow to look into the scientific merits of this wonderful food."
